

ATTACK OF THE SLIME

Directions: Add words to each blank, then read your wacky new story out loud! Repeat for a totally new story.

I was playing with my favorite _____ noun yesterday, when all of a sudden it started to
_____!
verb
I noticed some slime was coming out of its _____.
noun
I suspected it was slime because it was _____,
size
_____ and _____.
color adjective
Still, to make sure, I did an experiment. First, I found some slime in the basement and made some observations. It looked
_____.
adjective
It smelled _____.
type of smell
It felt _____.
type of texture
I tried to listen to it, but apparently slime doesn't make any noise. Of course, I definitely didn't taste it; everyone knows you don't eat slime!

When I was done, I decided to _____
verb
back up to my room and compare the basement slime with the substance I had discovered earlier. There were some differences. For example, the mystery substance looked _____ and it adjective
smelled _____.
type of smell
I began to wonder if it could be _____,
type of food
_____ or possibly _____.
type of liquid gross noun
But when I touched it, that's when I knew for sure. Slime is just plain slimy, and that's all there is to it!
